Topic: Introduction: Holiday Greetings

Dear Humanitarian Workers,

As this year comes to a close so does the leadership of Mayor Michael Bloomberg. New York City witness many changes and fights over various budgetary issues. The city also went through cycles of budget cuts along with vase arguments regarding the education system.

In regards to New York education system much more work and changes are needed. Actually the problems of the country's education system and problems should be addressed in conjunction with a national network. The issues of funding and implementation of technology should have been addressed collectively as a nation rather than just a mayor ~ city level platform.

All in all, now that his term has come to completion and through all the difficulties New York faced over the past several years. New York showed that it is strong enough to withstand some of the most difficult challenges.

Most recently South Africa opened a new chapter of the Nelson Mandela legacy

(<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zIs3TfU2Xsk&feature=youtu.be>).

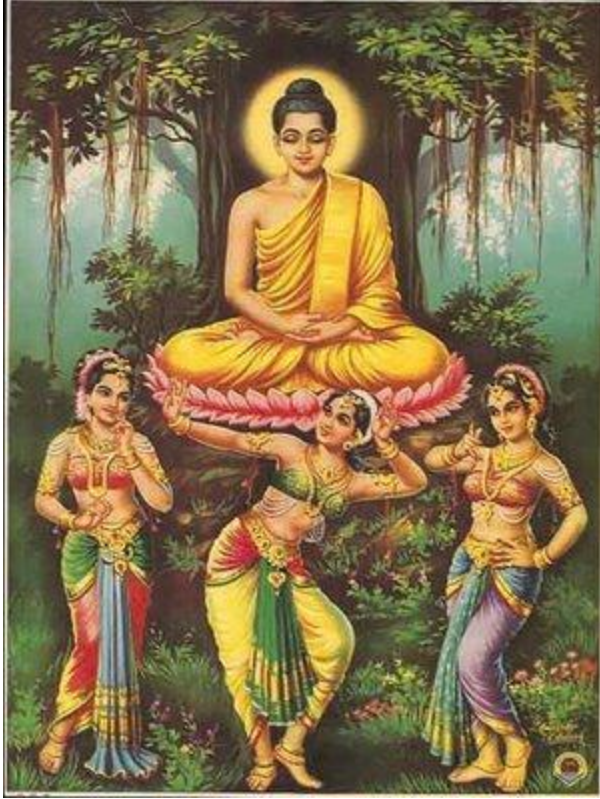

After having the majority of South Africa pray for president Mandela health, then they beautified his passing with international ceremonies and filled the stadium with reflections of president Mandela accomplishments and goals of the nation.

Now that the world has a better view and understanding of how we can achieve some of the most difficult goals, now would be a very good time for humanity as a whole to take a very deep look at its spiritual position in the universe as well as the energy it is generating and direction.

The question will clearly be; Can the center word “PRAYER” have real value in a modern technological society?

To continue with understanding and clarity for improving our “goodness”, I will want to bring focus to the problem of the picture of the three Daughters of the evil king (Mara) who tries to ??? the Buddha only to have their efforts noted as being “IN VAIN”.

This picture on the left side of the Buddha in the 15th position may cause many prayers to be discarded by the present and future Buddhas due to the unwillingness of the original Buddha to talk with the evil daughters (where a simple foundation may have / was established regarding the issue of dealing with children of evil people).

It may be better to discuss issues with the three daughters of the evil one to see if they are willing to remove their evil karma lingering from the past bad deeds of the evil one.

To improve our spiritual health and for the prayers not to be “in vain” we want A NEW PICTURE !

For one thing, the phrase on the picture does not fully explain the full story of Mara. It just says their efforts are “in vain” which is not good.

Although the ending of the age of the Kiluga is said to be in a state of confusion, the clarity of the situation of the Mara has several positions. As where an Indian Guru or Brama most likely will be consulted on the matter, for now we will reference the contents of the website <http://the-wanderling.com/mara.html> presented by Wanderling.

The first issue is if at one time the Mara was defined as being Lord of misfortune, sin, destruction and death.

Then should the Buddha dialogue and convince the three daughters to pray as well as convincing their evil one to pray for his~her self and not to drag their lives and spiritual health into the pits of hell?

Secondly is the validity of Mara being” lord of all men who are bound by the sense of desires”.

Is this a false perpetuation of a untrue statement: meaning that Mara is not lord of all men who are bound by the sense of desires, and that no Buddha past, present, or future can prove such a detrimental statement.

The evil one can not be the “lord of all men” and the statement that Mara is lord of all men is not a good statement to promote. Nor should the three daughters efforts to talk to the Buddha in good faith should be ignored.

Therefore rather than denying what may be real prayers by the three daughters a quest for a NEW PICTURE should be respected along with a clearer explanation for future Buddhas, nuns, and lay ministries on what to do regarding dealing with negative influences of the evil (people).

In our previous work session “Inside ~ Outside Talks 2014 “Early Announcement Letter” several issues were covered including the importance of working with Dr. Masaru Emoto book: “The Hidden Messages in Water” regarding efforts to bring more focus to cleaning up the bodies (and) of waters.

For starting efforts, we are not looking for people to have a chemistry set in their homes. The first segment should really only consist of using paper towels. After completing the task of collecting the dirty water, the paper towels can be used for filtering out (some) of the dirty from the water.

Efforts should include reviewing various prayers while reading about the importance of how to talk to water and placing the efforts and results on your website. You can also write about what you feel about the prayers you are working with.

If you are working with a group of people within your community it could be fun and very educational discussing the various prayers that you know about and its meanings.

These are some videos regarding “Books and efforts for Talking to Water”:

We also know that if you chose to work with the efforts of the Reform Jews and Muslims in their conversational efforts it could add to the benefits of assisting with efforts for cleaning up the water and communities.

The URLs to the interfaith dialogue project “The Children of Abraham” Jews and Muslims in dialogue are as follows (<http://urj.org/> and www.ISNA.net).

Take care for now.
